VARTA Microbattery certified by Sony Corporation

The certificate of the Sony Green Partner Program was recently given to VARTA Microbattery for the successful establishment of an environmental management system.

The Battery Experts achieved this important certification because of its high demands on environmentally-friendly development and manufacture.

This certification for our Ni-MH button battery supporting RTC- and memory backup in Sony Notebooks is a significant achievement, as still the vast majority of applicants to the certificate is being declined so far.

The standards requested by Sony Corporation are high. Finding more than 5 ppm Cadmium in plastics, they deprive the supplier of the partnership. Sony demands also that lead contents less than 100 ppm in all components except solder from 2004-04-01.
